PROBERS SAY WHITMAN SUICIDE

MILK PRICE WAR IS RENEWED

INQUEST IN DEATH OF MAN SCORED

A theory that Julian Whitman, who was found slain on a desert island in the county on Thursday, committed "suicide" was advanced by investigators to two insurance companies yesterday.

The theory was in spite of the fact that police and a coroner's jury had held that Whitman was murdered, after being taken for a ride.

LARGE INSURANCE
The insurance company men have entered the investigation, due to the fact that the dead man carried a total of $11,000 in life insurance.

J. E. O'Reilly, executive of the U. S. Fidelity and Guaranty company, in which Whitman was insured for $500 yesterday criticized the haste in which the coroner's inquest was held Friday at Brentwood.

HITS THE
"Officially declared that if this is murder, the killers went to hell," he declared, "and that Whitman had killed himself."

Executives of the New York Life insurance company, in which Whitman was insured under two $25,000 policies carrying double indemnity clauses for accidental death or murder, revealed that they have put two special investigators in the field to determine whether this is murder or suicide.

LARGE POLICES
Whitman carried a $10,000 policy in a third insurance company, the London Guaranty and Indemnity Company, and it was understood that this firm, too, has assigned an inspector to the case. The United States Fidelity firm likewise placed an investigator on duty.

OIL PRICE TO BE FIXED FEB. 1ST. BY ICKES

WASHINGTON, Dec. 30. (UP)—Secretary of the Interior Ickes, as administrator of the oil code, today postponed until February 1, the effective date of the proposed pricing schedules for the petroleum industry.

The schedules, which established a maximum price of $11 for 36-36.9 gravity Midcontinent crudes, were to have become effective January 1.

Ickes' announcement came shortly on the heels of charges made by Senator Borah, Republican, Idaho, that an agreement for the control of the industry now being reached by the administrator was unfair to the public and placed dictatorial powers in the hands of the major oil companies.

The effective date of the pricing schedules was postponed, Ickes said, to give him additional time to consider the control agreement which was submitted by the planning and coordination committee representing all factions of the industry.

Mill and milk products show a distinct falling off for the first four months of year. That fact, he reported as 7 to 15 percent in flow last year, but consumption is down 15 percent in some centers. For cream sales are much lower. Only cheese holds its own.

So the cry must be raised "kill the cows" not only the poor milkers but, very soon, some of the others. The supply is so much greater than the present demand that prices are below the cost of production.

"Cut down the supply, so the prices can go up!" Great idea that, for everybody else maybe, but not so good for the children of the cities where beer is already making milk hard to sell.

The flood of beer makes it so hard to buy milk for those who need it most spend the money, which should go for the children's milk, is spent for beer!

We do not believe that killing cows to raise the price of babies' milk, while giving brewers a profitable market for something nobody needs, is any part of the New Deal.

On the contrary, it is a part of an old misdeed which once aroused the flaming wrath of the "Pious of Little Children."

In all Christian Science churches branches of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass., a Lesson-Service will be read today, December 31, on the subject "Christ Jesus."

The Golden Text will be: "Thou Bethlehem Ephratah, though thou be little among the thousands of Judah, yet out of thee shall be forth unto me that is to be ruler in Israel; whose goings forth have been from of old, from everlasting." (Micah 5:2) Bible selections will include the following passage from John 8:12: "Then spake Jesus again unto them, saying, I am the light of the world; he that followeth me shall not walk in darkness, but shall have the light of life."

Passages from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy, will also be included which read as follows: "Jesus represented Christ, the true idea of God, Christ presents the indestructible man, whom Spirit creates, constitutes and governs. Christ illustrates that blending with God, his divine Principle, which gives man dominion over all the earth" (p. 316).

W. C. T. U. NOTES

BY MRS. CARL W. LONGVORE
"THE NEW MIS-DEAL"

In an editorial notice, the above title, the Christian Advocate, commenting on the "New Deal" theory of adding the farmer by the destruction of crop and cattle, emphasizes the fact that the return of beer is directing much of the power to beer and away from legitimate commodities, as every mill.

In four months this country has spent more than $200,000,000 for beer in order to produce $10,000,000 in revenue, says the Christian Advocate.

That money must have been diverted from other business for everybody knows. There has been such an increase in the beer and wine power at the people's table, the farmer, the laborer, the drinker, the taxpayer, and the drinker, that they would have done so, and so is the millman.

Milk and milk products show a distinct falling off for the first four months of year. That fact, he reported as 7 to 15 percent in flow last year, but consumption is down 15 percent in some centers. For cream sales are much lower. Only cheese holds its own.

So the cry must be raised "kill the cows" not only the poor milkers but, very soon, some of the others. The supply is so much greater than the present demand that prices are below the cost of production.

"Cut down the supply, so the prices can go up!" Great idea that, for everybody else maybe, but not so good for the children of the cities where beer is already making milk hard to sell.

The flood of beer makes it so hard to buy milk for those who need it most spend the money, which should go for the children's milk, is spent for beer!

We do not believe that killing cows to raise the price of babies' milk, while giving brewers a profitable market for something nobody needs, is any part of the New Deal.

On the contrary, it is a part of an old misdeed which once aroused the flaming wrath of the "Pious of Little Children."

In all Christian Science churches branches of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass., a Lesson-Service will be read today, December 31, on the subject "Christ Jesus."

The Golden Text will be: "Thou Bethlehem Ephratah, though thou be little among the thousands of Judah, yet out of thee shall be forth unto me that is to be ruler in Israel; whose goings forth have been from of old, from everlasting." (Micah 5:2) Bible selections will include the following passage from John 8:12: "Then spake Jesus again unto them, saying, I am the light of the world; he that followeth me shall not walk in darkness, but shall have the light of life."

Passages from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy, will also be included which read as follows: "Jesus represented Christ, the true idea of God, Christ presents the indestructible man, whom Spirit creates, constitutes and governs. Christ illustrates that blending with God, his divine Principle, which gives man dominion over all the earth" (p. 316).

ALL WORLD TO WELCOME NEW YEAR

held a dancing party to observe the new year. Tonight the Richmond Galileo Club will welcome the newcomers at an invitational party at Brotherhood hall.

CHURCH SERVICES

Local churches will unite tonight in a Watch Night service, which will be held at the First Baptist church. All Protestant churches of the city are uniting in this affair.

Family dinners, family reunions and visits are planned over the two-day holiday.

A WET NIGHT

San Francisco, Oakland and local night clubs and restaurants report huge numbers of reservations for parties at their establishments.

The celebrations in many places will probably be wet—in more ways than one, if the rain continues. For the first time in 14 years Old John Barleycorn will be legally among those present at the festivities. Tolerant state liquor cops will probably attempt to emulate the three-monkeys during the evening. No evil will be seen, heard or told by them.

MONDAY HOLIDAY

Housewives, who profited by the example on Christmas holidays, have probably laid in a good supply of bread by now. On Christmas day, Macdonald avenue was crowded by husbands and wives, searching for an elusive loaf of white, black, brown or any other color of bread. Grocers reported that they had sold out early Sunday. Results were that at many Christmas dinners the watchword was, "Help yourself but go easy on the bread, it's so scarce." Those who took part in the bread search then, have resolved they'll have plenty for Sunday and Monday this time.

All stores, banks, shops and other establishments in this city will be closed all day Monday.

And so, as the nation awaits the last breath of the old year, the song on every lip seems to be, "I'll be glad when your dead, you rascal you."

'It's Like This,'

JOVIAL "Tiny" Thornhill, mentor of the Stanford University football team, gives members of his squad a few last minute plays as the Sons of Stanford prepare for their tilt with Columbia at Pasadena Rose Bowl New Year's Day.

Speaking Of Sports

PASADENA, Dec. 30. — UP — Stanford, which landed atop the Pacific Coast conference football heap, and Columbia, an eastern gridiron leader, meet here Monday in the annual renewal of the colorful Tournament of Roses intersectional battle.

Stanford was a decided favorite at game time, although it, like Columbia, lost one contest during the 1933 season. Most critics held that the western team played a tougher schedule and that climatic conditions favored it.

LARGE ATTENDANCE

A large crowd was assured by the presence of such stars as Cliff Montgomery, quarterback, and Red Matal, end, of Columbia, and Bill Corbin, all-American guard; Bob Grayson, fullback, and Jim Moscrip, end, of Stanford.

The crowd probably would be satisfactory even if the teams had no stars—for the Rose Bowl game has tradition that draws fans regardless of the opposing team.

The New Year's day game, a climax to the publicity designed Tournament of Roses, was established as an annual affair in 1915 when a Washington State team defeated Brown and the great Fitz Pollard, 14 to 0.

Previously, one contest had been played in 1902, with Stanford and Michigan as opponents. Michigan, led by Willie Huston, won, 49 to 0.

SERVICE ELEVEN

There were no other games until 1916 and since then teams representing the East and West have met annually, except for 1918 and 1919, when service eleven played.

Possibly the best remembered of all Rose Bowl contests is the 1929 meeting, when Roy Riegels, one of the gamest and best centers the coast ever produced, ran the wrong way to give Georgia Tech an 8 to 7 victory over his own California team.

Stanford has appeared three times since 1916. In 1925, led by the brilliant Ernie Nevers, it lost 10 to 27 to Notre Dame. In 1927 it tied Alabama, 7 to 7. In 1928 it triumphed over Pitt, 7 to 6.

Today marked Columbia's first Tournament of Roses contest. No other school from New York City ever has played the classic.

Stanford was selected this year because it beat Southern California and moved to the top of the Coast Conference Tournament of officials, customarily name the conference winner as the western representative. The selection was popular on the coast because the Stanford team has color and because it defeated its two greatest rivals, Southern California and California.

Stanford, in turn, selected Columbia as its opponent when Princeton was unable to take the invitation because of a rule prohibiting it from engaging in post-season games.

Princeton gave Columbia a fancy trimming early in the season, but the Lions won all other contests, finishing the regular season strongly.

INTERESTING POLITICAL YEAR SEEN

SACRAMENTO, Dec. 30. — UP — Distracting outside influences have been fairly well cleared away, California's political stage is being prepared now for one of the most interesting years observers have foreseen.

Democrats, heavily reinforced in 1932 when California rejected her adopted son, Herbert Hoover, and elected the bandwagon following Franklin D. Roosevelt, are out to place a Democrat in the governor's chair. They don't know who their candidate will be, but they feel if they can decide upon one strong prospect, the general Democratic program progresses smoothly for another ten months will carry him to victory.

Republicans on the other hand, are split into two camps — The conservatives and the progressives with the more aggressive group lining up forces and seeking a candidate whose program would follow the ideas of the Hiram Johnson and C. C. Young administrations. Neither Republican group has indicated its choice and there was every indication that intensive individual campaign activities would be witnessed between now and August, when the primary will be held.

Of the individual candidates, three Republicans are outstanding. None has officially announced his candidacy. They are Governor James Rolph Jr., State Treasurer Charles G. Johnson, and Lieutenant Governor Frank P. Merriam.

Observers believed Rolph was in a stronger position now than he has been in two years. Despite many arguments to the contrary, it was believed his stand in the San Jose lynchings case won him more friends than it lost. And victory of the Central Valley water plan helped him in the San Joaquin valley, where previously he had comparatively little support.

Johnson has been campaigning extensively and will make a definite announcement about January 25, after spending three weeks in southern California and the San Joaquin valley. Although he is considered a personal candidate who backs out before making an official announcement, his friends insist he is in there to stay this time.

He claims to have 1000 friends working for him in Los Angeles, and says he meets with great enthusiasm every place he goes.

Merriam's campaign has been conducted quietly, but there is practically no section of the state he has missed during his constant speaking tours the past few months. He has not been in Sacramento since late in September. He talks before all sorts of service and civic clubs.

Both Johnson and Merriam have had more leeway speaking as "treasurer" and "lieutenant governor" than they would have as definite candidates for governor. This was believed to be one factor which led them to delay their announcements. As soon as they officially enter the gubernatorial race, they will not have such free access to clubs and other organizations which enjoy hearing state officials talk, but which cannot afford to show too much favoritism to political candidates this early in the game.

The DAILY WASHINGTON MERRY GO ROUND

WASHINGTON, Dec. 30. — Jesse different. There the men center before Strauss is going to resign as ambassador to France. Behind this determination are two potent factors.

The first is the NRA code and the way it has hit Macy's department store, of which Strauss is the guiding genius. He is needed back in New York.

The second is Strauss' personal dislike for the role of ambassador. After a lifetime of business activity, Paris pink teas and protocol have proven very boring indeed.

Also it is not the most propitious time in the world to be ambassador to France. War debts rankle. So do wine quotas, tariffs and the pumping-jack dollar. So Strauss, who had always wanted to be Secretary of Commerce and took Paris as an afterthought, is now throwing up the second most prized plum in the American diplomatic service.

Getting a Civil Works administration job has now pretty much boiled down to a question of luck, politics or personal pull.

The obvious jobs—cleaning refuse dumps, refitting roads, raking leaves, beautifying parks—now are in full swing, with more than enough men on them. But in addition, several thousand men still are standing in line, still hoping for work. This has taxed the ingenuity of CWA officials.

One CWA employer in the Geological Survey, for instance, ordered a shift of books moved from one side of the room to the other and suggested that a week was necessary to do it. Or take the case of one of Washington's once-prosperous insurance men. In better days he sported his own limousine, his winter home in Florida, and had a keen eye for feminine charm. Long destitute, he now came out of the CWA office radiant and beaming. CWA officials had found him a unique job.

"I'm getting seventy cents an hour on this," he boasted, "and it's better than begin' or starvin'. I've got a job counting traffic at a street intersection and I'm in a great hurry. You can get the same thing. Just go right up and insist."

Insistence no longer counts in getting a CWA job, however. The stage has been reached in all job hunting where political pull counts heavily. In fact, until President Roosevelt issued a confidential instruction to eliminate politics from the CWA, it had become a neat patronage racket for Commissioner Allen of the District of Columbia.

"Get a letter from your Senator," said Allen, who learned his politics from Pat Harrison of Mississippi. "If your senator is behind you we may be able to do something."

The men standing in line, though dwindling in number, have become more intense in their bitterness.

"The whole thing is a lot of dirty politics," said an ex-Marine Corps sergeant. "They are taking people who shot drag somewhere, while the rest of us with 23 years of honorable service on our record get about as much consideration as common street bums."

There is a definite difference, however, between the average type in the CWA line pleading for jobs, and those who frequent the regular relief lines. The first retain at least a spark of hope for the future. But with the latter all hope is dead.

In the ordinary breadlines, two ages of men predominate—the very young and the very old. There are the youngsters in their teens who got shoved out of large families because they were most able to shift for themselves and who have been haunting the jungles and the relief missions ever since. And there are the older men who long since have given up the idea of employment and have reduced bawling to a science. Most of them depend upon missions for their food and lodging and resort to "stemming it" (panhandling) for cigarettes, movies and liquor. In the pocket of one youngster receiving relief food during the holidays were ticket stubs from five Washington picture houses.

But in the CWA jobline it is

INQUEST IN TAX PAYERS DEATH OF COUNTY MAN SCORED GET SLASH

The case.
Dr. Curtis E. Smith of San Francisco, insurance company doctor, who performed a second autopsy on Whitman's body, asserted that it was "entirely possible" for the financier to have shot himself in the manner employed to discharge the .38 caliber gun into his head.

STAMENETS CONFLICT
His statement, collected with the coroner's jury testimony of Dr. J. G. Crafts of Brentwood, who said that, in his opinion, it would have been "physically impossible" for Whitman to have killed himself by firing a shot into the left side of his head. Whitman was right-handed.

Authorities found the physical evidence and other clues to support their conviction that Whitman was murdered.

The statement of Dr. Crafts that he could not have been self-slaim. The absence of mud on his shoes—he would have had to walk to the lonely Jersey Island place where his body was found, over roads made muddy by recent rains.

Presence of blood on his knees and lower part of his clothing, and the fact that only a small amount of blood was found beside his body, indicating he was shot, probably while sitting down, and his body carried to the island and deposited there.

The disappearance of his pocketbook, which is believed to have contained about $20.

Complete absence of any motive for suicide. No reason for Whitman to have desired his own death has so far been brought to light. His finances were in excellent condition, friends have declared, and his wife, Mrs. Francis Whitman of Palo Alto, declares that his health was good.

Therefore, with coding operations practically completed, and the administrative phase of NRA in full swing, Wolman proposes to return to his previous work in New York City.
